OUTLINES.

The Attorney General of South Carolina has filed a motion to have the dispensary cases advanced in the U. S. Court for the reason that the court's decision would be a guide to legislative action. —— Martin Thorn, on trial for the murder of Wm. Guldensuppe, was on the witness stand yesterday; he accused his accomplice, Mrs. Nack, of committing the murder; Mrs. Nack will not be called by the State; the case will probably be given to the jury to-day. —— A gale on the coast of England has caused great damage and loss of life; vessels are reported on shore all along the coast and many ships have foundered. —— A party of Northern capitalists and cotton mill men on a tour of the South were in Spartanburg, S. C., yesterday. —— Mrs. Theresa Cardoza, who died in San Francisco Saturday, weighed over 600 pounds. —— Senator Hanna is sick with grip. —— Advices from the Klondike are that the gold seekers are confronted with famine. —— Spike Sullivan, American, defeated Jimmy Curran Englishman, in a 20 round fight in London; Ben Jordan, feather weight champion, defeated Tommy Waite, of Chicago, in 19 rounds. —— Assistant Postmaster J. T Braveboy, at Lake City, S. C., was shot Saturday night by some one hidden near the postoffice. —— It is said that 150 out of 250 Cuban exiles sent to the Spanish penal colony of Fernando Po are dead. —— China will refuse the demands of Germany, except to make reparation for the murder of missionaries and the damage done to mission property. —— The second trial of Adolph Luetgert, the Chicago sausage maker, for the murder of his wife, began yesterday with the work of securing a jury. —— The attention of the Department of State has been formally directed to the dispute between Germany and Hayti; a Berlin dispatch says Germany only wants monetary reparation, but will not brook any interference in the matter by the United States Government. ——Gov Russell offers $400 reward for the capture of A M Lambert, who shot and killed L. M. Baumgardner, engineer on the Southern railroad near Asheville, N. C. —— A meeting of Southern bankers is called to assemble at Atlanta December 15th to consider the question of currency reform. —— New York markets: Money on call easy at 1½@2 per cent., last loan at 1½@2 and closed offered at 2 per cent.; cotton quiet—middling 5 13 16c; flour quiet and lower to sell; wheat—spot quiet; No. 1 99c f. o. b. afloat; corn—spot weak; No. 2 38⅝c f. o. b. afloat; rosin steady—strained common to good $1.40@1.45; spirits turpentine firm at 32½@33c

Herr Lecker, who made a 13 hour speech in the Austrian Reichsrath last week, came out all right, but the rioting began soon after, which shows that the Reichsrath couldn't stand it as well as he did.

Congressman Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, expresses the opinion that that there will be no radical legislation during the approaching session of Congress, and none on the currency question. They are going to slide along as easy as they can.

The Spanish authorities in Havana think that the dynamite bomb found near the American consulate a good joke. If it had been found near one of their shebangs, they would never have been able to discover the joke in it."

Yank O'Neill, who is under sentence of death at Greenfield, Mass., is a thoughtful sort of a fellow. When the judge fixed the date he implored him to make it earlier, because it was only killing his folks keeping him alive.

Some women are very unappreciative. An Ohio man who has ten wives, and escaped from jail a year ago, wrote one of them a note stating that he was coming to pay her a visit, and instead of appreciating the compliment paid her, she gave the police a pointer and now he is back in jail again.

Evidence is accumulating that some of the Southern editors are making a desperate effort to weather it out until the McKinley prosperity wave comes around their way. The Dade county, Alabama, News man thinks with a little help in the way of sweet potatoes or corn he can survive.

Hiram S. Maxim, the inventor, has an airship which he claims will fill the bill. The motive power is a 16-horse naphtha engine, made principally out of aluminum. He proposes when ready to make a trip to Klondike, and take about a ton of freight, with some passengers and provisions.

GROCERY STORE BURNED.

Corner Sixth and Nixon Streets—Insurance Loss $900.

At 8 30 o'clock yesterday morning the grocery store of Mr. Henry R. Kuhl, a one-story frame building, corner Sixth and Nixon streets, was consumed by fire, the origin of which is unknown. Mr. Kuhl and a clerk sleep in a room in the rear of the building and connecting with the store by a door. The clerk was aroused from his slumbers by a noise in the store, and at once awoke Mr. Kuhl, and when the door connecting the room with the store was opened a mass of flames was revealed. An alarm of fire was sent in from box 17, Fifth and Nixon streets, by Thomas Miller, who lives near the burned building. The fire department responded promptly, but as the flames had gained such a great headway, owing to the inflammable nature of the contents of the store, it was impossible to save the building. The store was insured for $700 with Messrs. J H. Boatwright & Son, and the stock of groceries for $200 with Messrs. Willard & Giles.

Serious Illness of Mr. DuBrutz Cutlar.

Mr. DuBrutz Cutlar's numerous friends will regret to learn that he has recently suffered another stroke of paralysis. He is at the home of his daughter in Marion, N. C., from whom the telegram was received yesterday. Mr. DuBrutz Cutlar, Jr., left yesterday afternoon to be at his father's bedside.

The Columbia Calendar.

The "Columbia" calendar for 1898 has been issued, and will be found exceedingly useful to all business and professional men, being a calendar and memodum pad combined. The following extract from the circular of the publishers does not exaggerate its merits:

"The 1898 Columbia Pad Calendar contains a convenient arrangement of dates that will prove useful to busy men, and as plenty of space is reserved for memorada, the pad may be used as a diary and as a reminder for business appointments and obligations. It is neat in appearance, takes up but little room and is both ornamental and useful for the desk, while its stand is of such character that it may be used either upon the desk or hung upon the wall. It can be obtained by mail pre-paid for five two-cent stamps by addressing the Calendar Department of the Pope Manufacturing Company, Hartford, Conn."

Brooklyn Baptist Church—Special Services.

Rev. Weston Bruner, D. D., of Baltimore, Md., arrived in the city last evening and preached his first sermon in the Brooklyn Baptist church last night. Dr. Bruner preached a great sermon, taking his text from Luke, xvii, 5: "Lord, increase my faith." The way in which the learned doctor presented his thoughts showed he was a master of his subject. It was a sermon full of power, and made a great impression upon his hearers. A large congregation was present, among whom were several ministers.

There will be services again to-night at 7.30 o'clock, to which all are invited. The church is on the corner of Fourth and Brunswick streets.

Death of a Well Known Colored Barber.

William H. Nash, colored, died at his residence on Campbell street, between Seventh and Eighth, Sunday afternoon, Nash, up to the time of the sickness which terminated in death, had followed the vocation of a barber in this city for many years, and was well known and well liked. All the colored barbers will close their shops at 1 o'clock today and assemble at Elijah Lane's shop, on Dock street between Water and Front, and attend the funeral in a body.

Delegates to the Baptist State Convention.

The following delegates to the Baptist State Convention, which meets in Oxford the latter part of next week have been chosen: First Church, Rev. W. B. Oliver, Dr. A. M. Baldwin and Messrs. J. C Stevenson, S. G. Hall, G E Leftwich, Owen Fennell, Jas. Calder, W. C. Peterson, A. P. Yopp and R. M Wescott; Brooklyn, Rev. J. W Kramer and Messrs. D L. Gore and S. L. Smith; Southport, Rev F H Farrington.

Nathan Willis is in Jail at Conway.

The STAR's information that Nathan Willis, colored, the murderer of young Stephens, of Pireway Ferry, was lynched by burning seems to have been incorrect. A special received from Conway last night says he is safely lodged in jail there. It is learned however, that several of Willis' captors wanted to lynch him and probably used threats of burning, thus giving rise to the rumor that he had been burned.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS.

Case Against Police Officer George for Assault Dismissed—The Penny Store Robbery.

The case against policeman W. D George, charged with assaulting "Chucky" Sampson, colored, with a deadly weapon, by pointing a revolver at Sampson on the afternoon of the 14th inst., near Front street market, came up for trial in Justice J. M. McGowan's Court yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The defendant presented an affidavit of removal and the case was transferred to Justice Bunting. After hearing the evidence Justice Bunting dismissed the case, holding that as the alleged assault had taken place only a few minutes previous to an assault charged against the same defendant on "Chucky" Sampson, and for the alleged commission of which assault (which was the firing of a pistol at Sampson) the defendant is now under a $50 bond for his appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court, that one assault was a continuation of the other, and consequently only one assault, if any, had taken place.

The assault charged against policeman George yesterday took place when he (George) attempted to arrest Sampson about two weeks ago, as Sampson was an important witness in the case against John Faircloth, charged with stabbing Walter Banks, both colored, (as told in the STAR)

Other cases tried by Justice Bunting were:

John Sanders, alias Willie Banks, colored, was arraigned, charged with robbing the store of Messrs. W. J. Penny & Co., corner Market and Water streets. The first robbery, which occurred early on the morning of the 17th inst., Sanders, alias Banks, was adjudged not guilty of, but the second robbery, which occurred a week subsequent to the first, and which was the stealing of a pair of boots early Saturday night while Messrs. Penny & Co.'s store was filled with people buying, the defendant admitted, and was committed to jail in default of bond for his appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court. Sanders, alias Banks, is the man who was bound over to the Criminal Court from the Police Court on the charge of robbing the schooner Pigott about a week ago.

Bessie Stanback, a white woman who was made to leave the city about ten years ago and who returned last Friday on an excursion and tried to abduct her child which had been bound out by her when she left the city, was arraigned charged with abduction. The warrant was amended and she was adjudged guilty of assault and battery and fined $20 and costs, which was however stricken out, as the defendant left the city never to return.

OPERA HOUSE.

Morrison's Faust:—A Capital Performance —Large Audience.

As Goethe is regarded by many of the literati to be the chief of German poets so Faust is reckoned as the greatest dramatic poem. The narrative is weird, and for that, if for no other reason, is entrancing and rivets attention from start to finish. The author's idea is dramatized and prepared for the stage preserves the unity and interest of the original, and forcibly presents the more salient points. Lewis Morrison, as Mephisto, is simply grand—that he has gained a national reputation in his rendition of this as of other characters of the standard drama goes without saying. His fame as a first class delineator of any character which he essays to portray is of many years duration, and fortunate is the writer whose interpretation is committed to the keeping of Lewis Morrison, for the reputation of such an actor precedes him, and he always sustains it. Mr. Morrison is no stranger to the Wilmington theatregoers; he has appeared on our boards before, and the alacrity evinced in reserving seats for last night's performance attests his popularity.

While Mephisto is the central figure around whom the other characters revolve, it is by no means all; there is Miss Mabel Morrison as Marguerite, who, though not out of her teens, yet assumes and successfully discharges the responsibility which this difficult task imposes. Mr. Whittlesey as Faust, Mr. Trimble as Valentine—their acting was excellent, each one mastering their part with true merit and ability. Miss Tapsfield, as Martha, deserves her share of the praise, for, as the others, she clearly demonstrated to having the character she portrayed under perfect control.

The rendition of the solos, trios and quartettes by Miss Florence Brooks, soprano, and the famous Morrison quartette, Messrs. Andrada, Taylor, Wisman and Trimbull, were fine, the audience evincing their appreciation by the tremendous applause and a number of encores.

Mr. Morrison has an excellent company, one of the strongest that has appeared at our Opera House, and we can assure him "the devil" will always meet with a warm reception whenever he returns.

Thompson, the Aeronaut.

Prof. Chas. A. Thompson, the aeronaut connected with Dr. Blue Mountain Joe's tent show, left Sunday afternoon for LaGrange, Ga., at which place he will make a balloon ascension and parachute drop to-morrow, as one of the attractions of the Fair now in progress at LaGrange. Prof. Thompson will return Thursday and repeat the show here.

One Cent a Word.

Hereafter advertisements to go in our Business Locals" department will be charged one cent per word for each insertion; but no advertisement, however short, will be taken for less than 20 cent

This is a reduction from former rates and it is also a convenience to advertisers who can calculte the exact cost of their advertisements, which must be paid for always in advance.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Held Sunday Afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. Building in Respect to the Late David G. Worth.

The memorial services at the Young Men's Christian Association Sunday afternoon were very interesting and appropriate. They were opened by remarks by the president, Mr. Andrew Howell, Jr, who said that it was eminently fitting that the young men, whom their departed friend had befriended so materially, should assemble together to honor his memory. He invited all to feel free to speak.

The hymns "Marching to Zion" and "Blest be the Tie," were sung to piano accompaniment by Miss Fanny Corbett. Dr. P. H. Hoge read scripture selections and led in prayer, after which Mr Diggs, the secretary, read the following letter which was written by Mr. Worth in response to one written him by Mr. Diggs, informing him that the active members of the Y. M. C. A. had held a meeting and offered prayer in his behalf.

GREENVILLE SOUND, N C.,
September 29, 1896

Thos C. Diggs Sec'y Y. M C. A, Wilmington, N C.:

MY DEAR SIR—Your very comforting letter of 25th August in behalf of the "active members" of the Association was duly received, and read to me while I was prostrate with sickness and nigh unto death as I then thought and others feared. It was indeed comforting to hear such tender words of sympathy and such warm expressions of esteem and regard as it pleased the young men to convey to me through you.

I thank them for the prayers offered in my behalf. I have the fullest faith that our kind and merciful Heavenly Father is a prayer-hearing and a prayer-answering God and that in my case He suffered Himself to be entreated by the many prayers of my many friends to bless the means used for my recovery. I am thankful to say that I am improving rapidly. "Oh! that men would praise the Lord for His goodness and for His wonderful works to the children of men." I have cause to praise Him and I trust I may never cease to do so with my whole heart and soul.

Now, with an expression of my warmest interest in the Christian welfare of the young men of the Wilmington Association and my highest regard and esteem for yourself, I am,

Sincerely yours,
D G. WORTH

WHAT MR. WORTH DID FOR THE Y. M. C. A.

Col. Roger Moore read a paper showing what Mr. Worth did for the Y. M C. A. From the time the movement was started Mr. Worth took a most lively interest, giving liberally to the building fund, subscribing to the bonds and aiding largely in supplying furniture for the building. He was a member of the Finance and Building Committees and gave his time freely in collecting and soliciting. He first gave $1,000. This gift was soon followed by another of a like amount. He subscribed to bonds aggregating not less than $3 000. He also made annual subscriptions to the current expenses, ranging in amounts from $50 to $350. When the building was about completed and chairs and other furniture for the auditorium were needed, Mr. Worth arranged for the purchase at a cost of $1 250. He also provided at a cost of $500 the drug store on the first floor with the furniture needed before it could be rented. When an offer of a loan of $30,000 was made, with the proviso that the building must be free from incumbrances, Mr. Worth made a clear gift to the association of the bonds he had purchased, the only stipulation that he made being that nothing be said about his gift.

Mr. H. E Bonitz said he did not come with studied phrases, but as one of the large number of young men who had felt the influence of the great and good man whose loss all were mourning.

Dr. Hoge referred to the occasion when the first gift of $1,000 towards the building fund was made by Mr. Worth in response to an appeal by Mr. Pearson, adding that so retiring was Mr. Worth's nature that it probably was harder for him to rise and give his name than it was to pay the $1,000.

Mr. W. M. Cumming said that it had not been his privilege to know the deceased so intimately as did some others, but he had known and felt his influence through his son George Worth.

Rev. W. B. Oliver spoke eloquently about Mr. Worth as a man and a citizen. Mr. Worth's life, he thought, had taught several lessons: A man can be honest and still succeed; he can be a man of affairs and at the same time a consistent Christian; he can be positive in his convictions and yet charitable; he can be a modest man and also a mighty one.

In referring to the widely known reputation for integrity that Mr. D. G. Worth's firm enjoyed, Mr. Oliver told of a letter from a delegate to the Southern Baptist Convention who was a stranger personally to most Wilmington people. The letter stated this fact, and added as a solution of the difficulty: "Consign me to Worth and Worth."

Letters expressing profound sorrow at Mr. Worth's death were received from Mr. E S. Tennent; Messrs. F. P. Turner and L A Coulter, former State secretaries of the Y. M. C. A.; Mr. Geo. B. Hanna, of the Charlotte Y. M. C. A., and Dr. Thomas Hume, of Chapel Hill.

The meeting closed with the benediction by Rev. W. B. Oliver.

The Democratic Alsemen.

The STAR is glad to hear that Messrs. Owen Fennell, W. E. Springer and Walter E. Yopp, the Democratic Aldermen elected in March last, will take their seats as members of the Board at the regular monthly meeting to be held next Monday night. The Supreme Court having decided that the "Wright" Board is lawfully constituted, the Democratic Aldermen, on advice of counsel, learned in the law, have no doubt as to their being legally entitled to their seats, and will act accordingly. These gentlemen have adopted a course that will commend itself to the tax-payers of Wilmington, to those specially whose votes elected them. They realize that they have a duty to perform, and they will discharge that duty faithfully.

CARDINAL GIBBONS.

Sermon by His Eminence at St. Thomas' Church Sunday—Impressive Ceremonies—Large Attendance.

The morning service at St. Thomas' Catholic church last Sunday were very attractive and impressive, the occasion being a sermon by His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons. Every available seat was occupied and though chairs were placed in the aisles and every effort made by the ushers to accommodate all, many of the late comers were compelled to go away without gratifying their desire to hear the distinguished prelate.

At about 10 30 o'clock the Cardinal, robed in Cappa Magna and preceded by the altar boys and visiting clergy, entered the church. Simultaneously the sweet tones of the organ began to peal forth a voluntary from Biederman. Immediately on entering the sanctuary, the Cardinal began the services, assisted by Revs. Whelan and Fletcher (the latter his secretary) as assistants at the altar, along with Father Price, of Raleigh, and Father Divine, of Baltimore, the choir rendering the Kirie of the mass in very effective style.

As it was the beginning of the Advent season the services were more simple than during the rest of the year. The altar was plain with purple insignia peculiar to the Advent season. Bartholomeus' Mass in F was selected for the occasion, not alone because of its beauty but also because it was not so long as to protract the services unnecessarily.

After the Credo, Sanctus and Benedictus had been rendered by the choir, the Cardinal read from the 18th chapter of Romans, and announced as the basis of his remarks the latter clause of the 10th verse, "Therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

The sermon was characterized by a charming simplicity that reached his hearers' hearts and bound their attention to his words. An extract from his discourse follows:

If I were asked, my beloved brethren whom I may say by way of parenthesis I am glad to see, though I see you rarely, if I were asked what was the distinguishing feature of Christ's religion, I would say it is all contained in one word, love. If I were asked what is the fundamental principle of the religion of Christ I would answer, love. You may condense all the sayings of our Lord and his apostles; you may condense all the precepts, the old and the new law; you may condense all the commandments, reduce them all to first principles, and the kernel of the fruits will be found in the one word love. "Love therefore is the fulfilling of the law." There can be no doubt in the mind of the Christian as long as he possesses the love of God in his heart. I am always sure that I am on the right path when I know that I possess God's love. I am always sure of the faith I profess when I love God and my neighbor as the Scripture tells us.

Christ himself when asked what was the great commandment of the law, replied: "Thou shall love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, with thy whole soal, with all thy strength; this is the greatest and first commandment. And the second is like this, Thou shall love thy neighbor as thyself." "Love, therefore, is the fulfilling of the law." And it is this which distinguishes the religion of Christ above others.

We are indebted to the Hebrew religion for many things we have in our own. Theirs was Moses. Theirs was Abraham. To them belonged all the patriarchs and prophets, and all those to whom the Lord had spoken. Theirs was Christ. From among their race He chose his twelve apostles and commissioned them to spread His religion. From that race sprang Mary, the mother of Jesus, "The root of Jesse," the glory of Christianity. To them indeed we owe a great debt. But, though they were the once chosen people of God, they were governed not by love, but by fear. Indeed, they prefer to inculcate the fear of the great Jehovah. Thus does St. Paul contrast the guiding spirit of each: "For you have not received the spirit of bondage again in fear; but you have received the spirit of adoption of sons whereby we cry Abba (Father). For the Spirit Himself giveth testimony to our spirit, that we are the sons of God, and if sons, heirs also; heirs indeed of God and joint heirs with Christ." Thus the Christian principle excels the rest. It makes us "joint heirs" with Christ in the Kingdom of God.

Then go over to that great Pagan world. The Pagans indeed worshipped their gods, but it was the worship of fear. They offered sacrifices to their gods to placate them, to avert great dangers, but they never addressed them as Father. They never thought of loving their gods, and the reason is because love presupposes some relation of friendship between the principals who love.

Christianity raises us to the distinction of sons of God. Jesus became man and established an earthly friendship, making His followers joint heirs with Him. Christ's love extended to all mankind in general. His arms were ever ready to receive the repentant sinner. On the cross they were spread to embrace the whole world.

Christ also had his particular loves. It is a great consolation to the Christian to be assured of the love of Christ. "I have," says St. Paul, "the faith of Jesus Christ, who delivered Himself for me." Here the apostle of the Gentiles distinctly says Christ had a special love for him, and so has he for every one of His true followers, and herein lies our dignity.

Christ also selected little children for special marks of love: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven." He declares in these words that it is only the innocent that can enter Heaven. How then, I ask, shall we be saved? Can we hope to be among the innocent? Ah! beloved brethren, the love of God is far-reaching. God also loves repentant manhood and repentant womanhood.

When the Pharisees repelled the sinners, Christ opened His arms to them. The pathetic scene of Mary Magdalen annointing the feet of Jesus whilst he was the guest of Simon brings consolation to many a weary soul."

His Eminence concluded by exhorting a greater practice of Christian love in the world. He said if we love each other, we desire nothing better than to speak and converse with each officer; so also if we love, Christ let us converse with him more frequently in prayer."

From 4 till 5.30 in the afternoon an informal reception in honor of the Cardinal was given at Col. F. W. Kerchner's residence, the interior of which was handsomely decorated with ferns, palms, roses and chrysanthemums, while the center-piece in the parlor was a mitre of white japonicas and the Cardinal ribbons. Throughout the whole reception there was a constant stream of visitors who were eager to renew their friendship with the venerable dignitary. He left with the visiting clergy in the 7 11 train in the private car of Mr. Warren G. Elliott.

TUESDAY MORNING, Nov. 30, 1897

WE COULD FORCE EUROPE.

The United States embrace the best position of the North American continent, the most fertile and the most resourceful in wealth-creating products of field, forest and mine. Within their borders are 75,000,000 of the most self-reliant, intelligent, energetic and enterprising people in the world. If communication with other countries were absolutely cut off they could not only sustain themselves, but they could do so with ease and live more comfortably than any other people in the world. They buy from other countries not because they are compelled to, but because they have a surplus of products which they have no use for, and buy from other countries that other countries may buy their surplus products. The party which is now in power practically asserted the independence of this country as far as the necessaries and comforts of life are concerned, when it inaugurated the protective tariff policy, which was intended to cut off European productions, and one of their proud boasts is that this policy has resulted in making us absolutely independent even as to some things which we at one time largely imported from abroad. Whether the tariff had this result or not, it is nevertheless true that such a tariff means that the country which adopts it has a self sustaining capacity, otherwise it would be gross inconsistency and nonsense, an illustration of legislation to force the impossible.

And yet we are told that this country cannot have a money policy of its own, that it dare not say what shall be money or what shall not be money, but that it must do as foreign nations dictate and dance to the music they make. Thus while we assert our self reliance and independence in everything else, we acknowledge our subordination and our dependence in the most important of all matters involving our prosperity.

We contend that while we are independent of other nations in everything else we are also independent in that, and not only independent but if we asserted this independence we would soon demonstrate that the nations which have been dictating to us, whose dictation we have been tamely and foolishly submitting to, are dependent upon us and would be forced to yield to us if we refused to yield to them.

In writing upon this subject heretofore we have asserted that it was in the power of the United States to force Great Britain and every other European gold standard country to adopt bimetallism, and that we would if we led the way, have every country on this hemisphere with us with the exception of Canada, and trade relations would put Canada practically with us, too. Some of the countries South of us have adopted the gold standard, not because they wanted to, but because pressure was brought to bear upon them by their creditor nations of Europe, and because this country to which they looked up as guide, had declared for the gold standard, that is is as far as the gold advocates were able or dared to go.

The bimetallic movement, as far as international agreement goes, has proved to be a delusion, so that the only thing left for this country to do is to declare for it independently, or to submit and wear the golden collar that the European shylocks have forged for us. Suppose we refuse to wear this collar, what then? Every country South of us which has put it on will take it off and adopt the standard that we adopt. Mexico has refused to wear it; she has shown more sterling independence than we did. Then we would have a practically solid hemisphere declaring for the restoration of silver. Then there would be more than 1,200,000,000 of the world's population for it, or more than three to one. How long could the gold worshippers of Europe hold out against that? They are not all self-sustaining nations. Very few of them are. They make their wealth by trading with other countries, not so much with each other as with the silver using nations of the world. Their money lenders make their money by lending money to other nations, and by investing it in enterprises in other countries, the larger part of it in the silver using nations. Where would they be with their gold standard if the nations with which they trade and upon whose trade they are dependent for prosperity, the nations to which they lend money, and where they find investment for their surplus, stood together in rejecting that gold standard and in refusing to be dictated to any longer? Does the manufacturer in the gold standard countries want to sell the goods he manufactures, does the man with his vaults filled with money from which he makes his income want to find places to put it, does the seeker after enterprises in which to invest his surplus want to find them? If they do, then they would have to accept the conditions presented or let their wheels stop, their ships rot at their wharves, and their money lie idle in their vaults. How long would they stand this? How long before they knuckled, accepted the inevitable, and got down on their knees in allegiance to silver as they now are to gold? A manufacturing and trading nation cannot get along without customers to buy its manufactures and the things it has to sell, and the money lending nation, while it may put on a good many airs and talk very arrogantly, must have borrowers. They may talk loudly and seem to be very independent, but they are after all the most dependent of nations. If confronted with determination by the nations they have been playing dictator to, they would soon acknowledge this by a change of tactics if not by open confession. They know the possibilities of this country if she should assert her independence, and therefore they have been doing everything in their power to prevent this and hold us in trade and monetary vassalage.

They can't do it forever, for the American people are not so stupid that they cannot learn in the school of experience, and now that the "international agreement" delusion is at an end they will see the necessity of independent action—either that or perpetual bondage to the gold taskmasters.

MINOR MENTION.

The distinguished S. Otho Wilson continues to pay his tributes of admiration to Senator Marion Butler. The following, in reference to Butler's Rocky Mount speech, is from last week's Hayseeder:

"We publish elsewhere language imputed to Senator Butler and the proof. His denial in the Caucasian was a denial of an accusation never made against him This dodging and evasion is worthy of him. We did not hear him, but we do not doubt he made the statement, for, knowing him as we do, we think he made the statement because we believe Marion Butler the only man in North Carolina mean enough to suspect such motives of a human being.

"God knows the meanness of the Democratic politicians is bad enough, but we don't think that any man would make that indictment against any race or set of men, unless he was capable of doing the same. And in all our experience we have never known a man so devoid of political or personal conscience as this same blatant hypocrite."

We judge from this that Mr. Wilson has no doubt that Mr. Butler said what is charged against him, because he knows him, and to show that he knows him, remarks that "in all our experience we have never known a man so devoid of political or personal conscience as this same blatant hypocrite." It may be incidentally remarked in this connection that Mr. Wilson had very good opportunity to become quite well acquainted with Mr. Butler, and take a sample of his conscience, as they sat for a long time side by side on the same stool in the Pop wigwam, and sopped out of the same bowl while they were dishing up hot stuff for the Pops of lower degree. Oh, yes. Otho knows him; there is no doubt of that, and has known him all the while, but didn't venture to express his opinion until he and Butler collided over that railroad commissionership. That loosened Otho's tongue, and now he is telling us how mean and conscienceless the man is with whom he has been hobnobbing so long. Another illustration of the old saying, "when rogues fall out," &c.

Senator Marion Butler professes to believe in "white supremacy." For years he has been editing a paper to which he gave the name of Caucasian, which means the white man. When he gave his paper that name he was a Democrat, but since he took his new departure he has been working in concert with the Republican party, making dickers to put the negro on top and lay white supremacy out as cold as a wedge. In all the political history of North Carolina there never was as much progress made in this direction as there has been since the present combine of Republicans and Populists got into power, and if more was not made we are not under obligation to Butler for it, for he never once opened his mouth for white supremacy or made a move to stem the tide of black supremacy. The following, as an illustration, we clip from the Raleigh News and Observer:

"Greenville,' writes one of its distinguished citizens, 'has actually been taken control of by the negroes. The act, as will be recalled, divided the town up into four wards. The lines are so run that the negroes have a large majority in two wards and the whites in two wards. To the two negro wards this act gives two aldermen each and to the two white wards one each. At the last election the negroes elected four negroes, and the whites two white men, so that the town has a board composed of four negroes and two white men. The mayor and chief of police are white men, elected by this negro board. The assistant policeman is a coal black negro. The clerk of the board is a negro.

"The taxable property of the town is nearly three-quarters of a million, and the four negro aldermen, the mayor and chief of police give in less than $600 worth of property for taxation.

"But for the row in the fusion camp last winter many a town in Eastern North Carolina would be in the same condition as Greenville. By their faults shall ye know them. There is no theorizing in the above statement; it is a recital of the facts, which every one may confirm for himself."

In another column we quote S. Otho Wilson's opinion of his chief. His course on the "white supremacy" question bears out Otho's characterization of the "blatant hypocrite."

* * *

Georgia has some progressive members in her Legislature. We referred a few days ago to a bill introduced by one of them to provide for the establishment of State banks to supply the people with needed currency. Another has introduced a bill, which is highly commended by some of the leading papers of the State, to encourage the establishment of manufactories. Among other things it provides that any industrial enterprise in which as much as $50,000 capital is used shall be exempt from taxation for a period of ten years. The idea is good, but as we see it there is a mistake in putting the capital to be employed so large. A lower figure would be more likely to stimulate investment and to increase the number and variety of industries, and it is diversified industries that are wanted. Industries grow, and not infrequently those started with a small capital attain large proportions. It is these that need encouragement more than the larger, which are better able to stand taxation. If it were practicable, it would be a wise thing for every Southern State to do to exempt all manufactories from taxation for a reasonable number of years, long enough to give ample time to demonstrate whether there was anything in the industry or not.

CURRENT COMMENT

—— If Senator Wolcott will but glance Colorado ward he will perceive a keen disposition to swat any sort of explanation he may see fit to make.—Washington Post, Ind.

—— On the Coffee Exchange coffee is selling at five cents a pound. But for the coffee you buy you still pay anywhere from 25 to 35 cents a pound. The middlemen and not the consumers get the benefit of the low prices. That is the method of trusts and speculators.—New York World, Dem.

—— We have sometimes taken shame to ourselves in this country because of the violence of the proceedings in Congress. But our Congress in its worst estate was never comparable with the lower house of the Austrain Reichsrath in which the fighting Germans, Poles and Czechs have lately thrown order and decency to the winds, and have behaved themselves like a street mob. That nobody has been killed makes the matter worse. Where there is real occasion for war there should be accompanying manslaughter.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

—— The dispatches state that Germany is negotiating with the great powers for a permanent occupation of Kiao Chou bay, China, as a naval station. The bay, it will be remembered, was recently captured from the Chinese garrison by three German warships. Poor old China, it seems, is not to be consulted in the matter of permanent occupation by the Germans. If the great powers of Europe are willing, Germany will set up her naval station without asking China any odds. Will this mark the beginning of the dismemberment of the great yellow empire?—Savannah News, Dem.

THE STRANGE FACES WE MEET.

Both in Society and on the Street---Why Are Some Attractive and, Alas, Too Many Repulsive.

What a difference there is in the faces of women, and for that matter of men also, and how strange the effect is. There are faces that attract men and fascinate women, while there are others that seem to repel just as strongly.

Did you ever study faces? Have you ever paid real close attention to the looks of the men and women you meet in the course of a day? It is a fascinating study. Many of them are unattractive, but some of them have power that is most fascinating. Now, what is the secret of this charm and beauty? There is but one answer and we will give it.

It can be expressed in two words—"perfect health." No woman can look well when she is made constantly miserable by distressing weaknesses and ailments. These things destroy the complexion, bring gloominess and blues, and in addition to the misery created render the woman unattractive. No man can appear well, work well, or do well who is not feeling well. Imagine any man or woman trying to be pleasant or attractive when troubled by headaches, tired feelings, and dragging or bearing down sensations. It is simply impossible.

For more than twenty years the American people, and for that matter the inhabitants of the entire globe, have heard of a grand discovery that overcomes these troubles as if by magic and makes the person healthy as well as attractive. Its value has been appreciated by vast numbers as well as by the medical profession, but there are some who do not know what its secret and mysterious power can do for them; but if any reader of these lines wishes to know how these disagreeable, and often deadly, symptoms can be overcome; how health, vigor and happiness can be restored, and how attractiveness may be secured, we answer unhesitatingly and frankly: "Use that great discovery, that proven remedy, Warner's Safe Cure."

It is a common thing to bring proof of the value of health-giving remedies from those who have been restored. Warner's Safe Cure does not require this. It stands prominently upon an eminence of its own, and while there are thousands of people in America alone who have voluntarily acknowledged its vast benefit to them, it does not require their endorsement to prove to any sufferer that it can help, that it can cure, that it can brighten the face, remove the lines of care and thus render, through the channels of health, that pleasant attractiveness so much desired. A trial of this remedy will fully prove to you the truth of this assertion.

TWINKLINGS.

— "What a quiet man Barkley is. He never has a word to say."

"Oh, but you've never seen him when his wife wasn't around."—Cleveland Leader.

— "He gives twice that gives quickly," urged the collector, earnestly.

"True," responded Snagge, calmly, "but I've often noticed that he that gives slowly very frequently doesn't have to give at all."

—It was at the beginning of their wedding trip. "Dear," she inquired anxiously, "in the excitement of leaving, did you say good-by to papa and mamma?"

"No," he replied, "I said 'au revoir.'"—Puck

— "I'm afraid," said the candidate gloomily, "the other side has me beaten and they know it."

"Way do you think so?" asked his friend.

"Well, there are very few campaign lies being circulated about me."

— "If I were in your shoes," said Mrs. Doncater, "I would—"

"Hold on right there," interrupted Mrs. Burbeck, "let us not go beyond the real of possibilities."

Three seconds later the front door went shut with a loud bang!—Cleveland Leader.

— "Is a man ever justified in breaking a matrimonial engagement?" he asked anxiously.

The query editor looked thoughtful. "It is not so much a question of justification," he said at last, "as it is of the kind of cloth the girl has on you for breach of promise."—Chicago Post

— "There is one point about your friend Boswell, Johnson," said Napoleon. "He simply doted on you."

"Say rather," retorted Johnson, "that he snee doted on me. He reminded me somewhat of you in your prime, Bonaparte."

"In what respect?" demanded Napoleon.

"He was a Parasite," said Johnson.—Harper's Bazaar

— Love-making in the Western metropolis, according to the Chicago News: "I'm a plain, everyday business man," said Merritt, "and I am nothing if not practical. Miss Wisely, will you be my wife?"

I admire your frankness, Mr. Merritt," replied the fair object of his affections, because I am inclined to be rather matter of fact myself. How much are you worth?"

Pure blood is absolutely necessary for perfect health. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the one true blood purifier and great health giver.

From Extreme Nervousness.

THAT no one remedy can contain the elements necessary to cure all diseases, is a fact well known to everyone. Dr. Miles' System of Restorative Remedies consists of seven distinctively different preparations, each for its own purpose.

Mrs. L. C. Bramley, 37 Henry St., St. Catherines, Ontario, writes: "For years I suffered from extreme nervousness and annoying constipation, developing into palpitation and weakness of the heart. I was unable to sleep, suffered much from headache, pain in my left side, palpitation and a constant feeling of weakness and prostration. I began using Dr. Miles' Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills and the Anti-Pain Pills to relieve sudden paroxysms of pain and headache. I soon felt much improved and the pains and aches and weariness left me. I then took Dr. Miles' Restorative Tonic and am now restored to my former good health."

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Goldsboro Argus: More wheat has been sown in this county than for many years.

— Fair Bluff Times: The people of this section are investing freely in all kinds of fruit trees.

— Rockingham Index: Mr. J. C. Smith, the chicken dealer, sometimes runs across queer specimens of the feathered tribe in his trade. The latest addition to his stock is a hairy chicken. In the place of feathers it appears to have fine hairs growing on its back and is quite a curiosity.

— Raleigh News and Observer: The State pays pretty dearly for some of its convicts. Four—young white boys, all of them, and for short terms—were brought here yesterday from Ashe county. It cost $111 30 to get them here, to say nothing of the cost of catching and convicting them.

— Salisbury Sun: Mr. H. G. Miller, of Franklin township, tells us to day that the people of his neighborhood are sowing more wheat this year than they have for some time The ground is being prepared better and the wheat put in nicer than usual, he says. Cotton fields of ten and fifteen acres that have been run in the staple for years are being turned and sowed in wheat.

— Raleigh Times: The Supreme Court has set the case of L. C. Caldwell vs James W. Wilson, in the suit to determine the validity of Gov. Russell's action, to be argued before the court on the fourth of December.

—— William S. Etters, convicted of manslaughter at the Spring term, 1894, of Cleveland Superior Court and sentenced to fifteen years in the State prison, was to day pardoned by Gov. Russell.

— Charlotte Observer: Along all the roads leading to Charlotte the farmers report seeing wheat and oats being sowed, or fields put in preparation for sowing in December. If the reports now received may be accepted as an average of what is being done all over the county, the cotton acreage will be decreased as much as 25 per cent. Some of the farmers are inclined to put the estimate at 33 per cent.

— Kinston Free Press: Mr. Simon E. Hodges died yesterday morning about 6 o'clock, at his home, five miles northwest of Kinston, aged 66 years, of blood poison. —— Basil Morton died at his home three miles from Tenton, last Wednesday morning of paralysis. He was first stricken some weeks ago, and had two attacks afterwards, the last proving fatal. Mr. Morton was in his 82d year.

The Death of Pontiac.

In April, 1769, Pontiac went to St. Louis. One day he arrayed himself in the uniform of a French officer, given to him years before by the Marquis of Montcalm. After visiting his old friends, he repaired to the village of Cahokia, across the Mississippi, where he joined in a feast given by the Illinois. In the early morning he left the town for the forest, singing as he went. An English trader, Wilkinson by name, thinking to rid his country of a dangerous enemy, promised an Illinois Indian a barrel of rum to murder the famous chief. This treachery on the part of one of their number cost the Illinois dear, for Pontiac's friends did not cease in their vengeance until they had practically wiped out the Illinois nation. The body of the chief was buried with military honors near the fort at St. Louis. "Neither mound nor tablet," says Parkman, "marked the burial place of Pontiac. For a mausoleum a city has risen above the forest hero, and the race whom he hated with such burning rancor trample with unceasing footsteps over his forgotten grave."—Charles Moore in Harper's Magazine.

Some Metaphor.

The Bozeman (Mon.) Chronicle tells of a Montana legislator who, when some corrections in spelling and grammar in his bill were called to his attention by the committee, said, "Why, you fellows have mucilated it!" It was the same statesman who said, in addressing a committee of which he was a member: "The muddy dough of politics was the bowlder upon which the law was split in twain and fell in a thousand pieces from the pedro of justice. Let us, then, gear up our lions, that we can go forth with a clear head."

They who are proud of family antiquity ought to be ashamed of beating a dog, who, we are certified, is of older creation. —Landor.

The Surprise of All.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at R. R. BELLAMY'S drug store.

Extreme Delicacy.

The man who always looks good natured was in a particularly glowing mood as he remarked:

"I closed a first rate deal yesterday; sold a piece of property at a big advance on the original price. I never should have bought it in the first place if it had not been for the fancy my wife took to it. I tell you it's always a good idea to get your wife's advice about any business you may have on hand."

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "I have always thought it was a good idea where it is practicable."

"Oh, I see! You are facetious. You mean that a man may be unmarried."

"No. I was thinking of my own case."

"Don't you ask your wife's advice?"

"I used to. But I don't any more."

"Didn't it turn out well?"

"Oh, yes. But circumstances have changed."

"You don't mean to say that you and she have had a difference?"

"No, indeed. I shouldn't think of difference. But I shouldn't ask her advice about any business for fear of having my motives misconstrued. You see, Henrietta has been studying law, and if I were to ask her advice she might think I was trying to take advantage of our relationship to get something for nothing."—Washington Star.

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 29—The market for cotton opened barely steady. The first call developed a decline of 1 to 2 points, cables from the English cotton markets being disappointing. Following the call there was a further loss of 1 to 3 points in the absence of support from outside sources, while there was some selling by houses with Southern and European connections. Later the market recovered the loss on disappointing receipts, New Orleans alone reporting 8 000 bales less than official estimates But trading was slow and the market made a narrow range for the day, the tone finally quiet and steady at a net decline of 1 to 2 points and total sales reaching but 89 300 bales. In the afternoon the market was about steady, predictions of extremely cold weather in the cotton belt to-night breaking the force of increased receipts estimates prevalent this afternoon.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Evening.—Cotton quiet; middling 5 13 16c.

Cotton futures opened barely steady, with sales of 6 200 bales, and closed quiet and steady, with sales of 89 300 bales; January 5 71, February 5 76 March 5 80, April 5 85, May 5 90 June 5 95, July 6 00, August 6 04, September 6 04, October 6 03, November 5 65, December 5 66.

Women Growing Still Nicer.

Are women becoming more marriageable? Somebody writing in London Woman flatters them that they are. The writer declares that they are not so ready to rush into matrimony certainly, for their lives are no longer stunted and empty, and they are perhaps inclined to subject suitors to a little more mental criticism. Moreover, men are, happily, not so eager to marry young. "I think we shall find as the world goes on more happy marriages to rejoice our quality of benevolence, for the reasons that I have just stated are deep and powerful incentives to happiness. If only each sex would more fully realize the honor done to it at the altar by the other! The nicest, most chivalrous hearted men sometimes say that half their pleasure in a wife consists in taking care of her, yet one cannot help agreeing with the saying of some writer that 'a woman, in order to give her hand with dignity, must be able to stand alone.' The gift is then complete, open hearted and generous—a meet return for the honor, grace and reverence which have been freely paid to her."

WAR AND COMMERCE.

The Inventor as Potent a Factor In the One as In the Other.

War is always a horrible possibility, but when divested of its personal and political details it cannot but possess a peculiar fascination for the engineer, especially since engineering has so largely entered into all the methods of modern warfare. Since the last great war the machinery of warfare has been almost entirely recreated, and indeed many devices have been invented, constructed and become obsolete without ever having had a chance to show what they were worth in actual combat. Should the great powers become involved in warfare, however, there is no doubt that numerous mechanical devices, till the present kept secret, will appear in various lines of fighting machinery, and it is not impossible that, as in the days of the monitor, armaments and equipments upon which millions have been spent will find themselves relegated to the curiosity shop overnight.

The restless ingenuity of the inventor is almost as much of a bane to the leaders of commercial warfare as to the war lords of militarism. It has been said, and doubtless with truth, that the managers of the great commercial combinations consider the possibilities of superseding inventions as the greatest element of risk in their calculations. From this point of attack industrial combinations are almost helpless, for no degree of business skill can avail when whole plants are rendered obsolete by the advent of some new device or process which may supplant the entire method of manufacture, if not the product itself. It is this equalizing element which may, in obedience to the law of supply and demand, check to a great extent the growth of commercial combinations, intended to control production, prices and business. The very success of a business combination sets inventors to work devising methods, processes and machines to accomplish similar results by other means, and no man knows what a day may bring forth when the tide of invention is turned in any one definite direction. The natural laws of the physical forces must control in the end, and it is to those laws that the development of the commercial side, as well as the technical portion of human industry, must look for ultimate guidance.—Cassier's Magazine.

USE THEIR OWN REMEDIES.

Chinese Methods In Cases of Smallpox and Other Diseases.

"With the exception of the narcotics, the Chinese use none of our medicines as curatives or remedial agents, and yet they are no longer lived race than we are," said R. W. Ransom of San Francisco. "It is a serious violation of their rules for any member of their numerous colony in San Francisco to call for or accept the services of an American physician in cases of sickness. They use their own peculiar remedies even for the cure of so serious a disease as smallpox, though, of course, if the authorities learn of the existence of this loathsome malady among the pigtails, they are yanked off and treated like all the victims of this disease.

"It is a curious fact, well worthy of investigation, that when they are subjected to our treatment for smallpox fewer cures are effected than when they are permitted to apply their own remedies in their own way. So patent has this fact become to the health authorities of San Francisco that they wink at smallpox in the Chinese quarter until somebody makes a hue and cry over its existence. The disease is more common among them than the general public suspects, and they regard it as a visitation of divine wrath for some infraction of the Confucian religious code. I have seen Chinese women going around from house to house in their quarter of the city with babes in their arms on whom the dread disease had made dangerous progress. It is a Chinese custom to thus exhibit the affliction visited on the household before treatment for its arrest or cure is begun. This is to warn others to walk in the straight and narrow path lest their households, too, be singled out for a visitation of Confucian wrath.

"Their first treatment consists in swathing the entire body of the victim in bandages strongly saturated with an opiate preparation. Nothing else is applied for 24 hours. At the expiration of that period the patient, whether infant or adult, is dosed with gallons of liquids, and this is continued until a complete cure is effected or death ensues. They guard closely the secret of this liquid preparation and cannot be induced even to allow pharmacists to look at it."—St. Louis Republic.

Escaped an Awful Risk.

The poker game was at its height. Beason had lost all his money, but he was burning with the gambling fever, and would not leave the table. He pledged his watch, a gift of his deceased father, for chips and quickly lost them all. Then he laid on the table a ring which had been given him by a loving sister. The chips he received in exchange lasted just three minutes. For a moment he hesitated, his face flushed, and he started to leave. But when he heard a sneering remark about his poker abilities, he uttered an oath, sat down again and converted into chips a diamond pin, which was a birthday present from the girl he loved. In ten minutes he was broke again.

The fever was now burning fiercely in his veins, and he cried recklessly: "I'll put up everything I possess—the shirt on my back, if it comes to that." Wild with excitement, he sprang to his feet and shouted: "I will do you follows yet. I will keep up the game even if I have to risk"—

He stopped. His face became livid. He looked around like a caged beast. Then, making a rush for the door, he moaned: "Not that! Oh, heavens, I cannot risk that! No, no, no!"

As he disappeared one of the players remarked: "Poor devil! I guess he was going to put up some keepsake from his mother."

But such was not the case. For one awful moment Beason had been tempted to risk his bicycle.—New York Journal.

LECTURED BY HIS BRIDE.

The Deacon's Wife Told Him In Emphatic Terms What to Expect.

Old Deacon Stubbs rested his elbows on the rail fence and watched the wreaths of smoke that arose from his cornoob pipe. But he shyly raised his eyes every few moments and glanced fondly at a plump little woman who was busily engaged in picking potato bugs from the rows of vines on the other side of the palings.

He finally removed the pipe from his mouth and in a drawling but earnest tone remarked:

"I say, widder, hain't today jist a year sence your old man got the fever an agur an shook off his mortal coil?"

"Cum to think, deacon," the woman answered, as she made a grab for a good sized bug, "it do be a year to the day. An a dreary year et hez bin, deacon."

"Jist so, widder," continued the deacon, lowering his voice. "Hev you bin lonesome like?"

"I hev thet same, deacon."

"Hev you had a hankering to git spliced again, widder?"

"They hez bin times, deacon, as I wunld like to hev"—

"I say, widder," interrupted the deacon, "hev you set your mind on anybuddy yit?"

"Me? La, no, deacon, er—thet is—I hain't 'lowed anybody wanted Widder Simmons."

"Er—I—say, widder, they is ones what would be willin."

"Who be they, deacon?" the widow asked with animation.

"Waal, thar's ole Felix Foster an Farmer Dudley an thar's—but I say, widder, I 'low I knows of one what 'ud be puffectly willin."

"Who be it, deacon?"

"Waal, I 'low 'taint ettiketty fur an ole widderer like me to be playin at courtin, but I mought be willin to buck ag'in life's river with Widder Simmons."

"La, me, deacon; I never 'spected sich. Why, course I'm willin, deacon, ef you air."

"I'm willin, just right now, widder. Here comes Parson Gadley 'cross the farm, an you an I'll git spliced in less'n two minutes."

Parson Gadley, after much surprise, asked the deacon and Widow Simmons to join hands over the fence, and in a short time the ceremony was over.

"Now, widder," said the deacon, after the parson had offered them a blessing, "clim' right over the fence an grab my arm. I want to take you home an introjuce you to my darter Carryline."

"I'm right willin," the widow said, as she scrambled quickly over the fence, "but I 'low plum now, ef your darter Carryline is sot again this percedin, me an she is goin to fit like two cats, an ef you take her part, deacon, I'm goin tu raise a lump on your head ez big as thet cowhouse yonder. Now, hearken to me, deacon; you wanted Widder Simmons, an you've got to stan around an do jist ez Widder Simmons sez, an so does your darter Carryline, ef she hez seed 47 summers an got gray hairs."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Richest American.

"Who is reputed to be the wealthiest person in the United States?" Some two or three years ago a New York correspondent of a leading western paper devoted a good deal of space in setting forth the wealth attained by the men who had accumulated $50,000,000 or more. At that time the list contained nine names and stood in the following order: William Waldorf Astor, $150,000,000; Jay Gould, $100,000,000; John D. Rockefeller, $90,000,000; Cornelius Vanderbilt, $90,000,000; William K. Vanderbilt, $80,000,000; Henry M. Flagler, $60,000,000; John I. Blair, $50,000,000; Russell Sage, $50,000,000; Collis P. Huntington, $50,000,000.

The above estimates were said to be authentic at the time they were published. The wealth of Mr. Astor consists of real estate in New York city; Gould's was in stocks and bonds; Rockefeller's is partly in Standard Oil stocks and partly in railroad securities; the Vanderbilts' is in railroad stocks and bonds; Mr. Flagler's is in Standard Oil stocks and government bonds; Mr. Blair's is in government and municipal securities; Mr. Sage's is in stocks and bonds or loans, and Mr. Huntington's is in railroad securities.

It is said that William Waldorf Astor will be a billionaire before he reaches the allotted age, and that he will follow the precedent set by his great-grandfather, John Jacob Astor, in transmitting his fortune to his eldest son. Should he become a billionaire his income at 6 per cent interest would be $60,000,000 a year, $5,000,000 a month, $1,171,154 a week, $166,849 a day, $6,952.05 an hour, $115.87 a minute and $1.93 a second.

As to the wealth of Andrew Carnegie and John Wanamaker, the iron and steel king is said to be worth $90,000,000 and the merchant prince $10,000,000.—Chicago Record.

The German Emperor and Empress.

I remember that when I lived in Berlin, when a child, Sunday was scarcely observed in any way by the Germans. The churches were well nigh empty. You might have imagined yourself in London upon a bank holiday. But the present empress is a woman of very firm religious principle, and William II, however changeable he may be in other matters, is a rock where his pious belief is concerned. It has been the dearest wish of both himself and the empress to introduce the "English Sunday" to the Germans, and it is wonderful indeed how they have succeeded. The increase of belief is remarkable; the Berlin churches are now attended by crowds, and the clergymen, formerly at a discount in society, are feted as if they were the military.

Both emperor and empress always attend divine service in the morning. The preacher is forbidden, it is true, to speak longer than 15 minutes, and the congregation is warned against "staring" at their majesties. After church the royal couple entertain a few intimate friends at luncheon, and before bedtime the empress imparts some Bible knowledge to her children.—Woman at Home.

Ringing the Bell and Running.

"In the days when knockers graced the house door," said Mr. Stoggleton, "the small boy found sport in banging the knocker and running. When bells came in, he yanked on the bell pull and then fled. Nowadays he mysteriously presses the button, but the sport of calling people to the door for nothing is not what it was, and it seems probable that with the general introduction of the push button, it will finally fall into decadence.

"There was some fun in pounding with the door knocker, whose thunder reverberated through the hall and filled the house, all of which you could hear yourself. And you could yank the bell out to the limit, causing the bell to fly almost off the spring; there was fun in this. But there is no such fun in pushing in a push button. You can press that in perhaps a quarter of an inch, and that is all you can do with it. Say you are in the vestibule of a flat. Very likely you don't hear the bell ring at all; it may be that it is up three or four flights of stairs; you hear no sound. Nobody comes to the door; you don't have to run. Possibly the people whose bell you have rung may press a button up there in the air somewhere and you may hear the click of the door opener at your side, or they may not do even that.

"It is dry fun; not like the old slambang knocker on the outside of the door or the bell pull with the jingle bell right in the hall."—New York Sun.

Guarding the Levees.

Every foot of the levees was guarded by armed men, for, with the river booming and straining and bulging on both sides, it is a sore temptation for a dweller on one bank to save his fortune by cutting the levee on the opposite side and relieving the tenseness of the strain on his own bulwarks by the treacherous outlet into his neighbor's fields. Then the irresponsible darky has just enough imagination to conceive of free government bacon and "pone" under the flood conditions which a sly stab at the levee would bring without any realization of the horrible price he was paying for it.—"About the World" in Scribner's.

It is estimated that one-twelfth of the population of England suffer from gout. A Berlin physician, Dr. Fehlaner, says that this malady is often due to the excessive use of meat.

Newton was so small and frail at birth that his life was despaired of. He lived, however, to be 85, which was also Voltaire's age.

The Educational Ideal.

Our present system of elementary education does not rise to the moral requirements of the age. It stands too largely for the development of the memory for the purpose of mere money making, to the neglect of the nobler spiritual qualities. It too often leaves out the cultivation of the heart and the training of the hand, the quickening of the conscience and the growth of the moral perception. Such a system is not education in any large sense; it is what Pestalozzi called "mere instruction." The education that makes character, individual and national, begins with the heart, the conscience and the imagination. The storing of the memory with facts is a tool shop more essential to the making of a living than the learning how to live, which is life's higher purpose. "We create life through ideals," taught Pestalozzi. "We learn by doing," said Froebel. And both agreed that life must be taught from life or by example, and that the individual gift of the pupil was "sacred to the teacher," and that each pupil must be developed after his own gift as though there were no other pupils like him or gift like his in the world. The old time New England school dame, whipping the dates of the reigns of Roman emperors into 5-year-old brains, formed no part of the grand Pestalozzian vision. "Education stands for character," said Pestalozzi. Our national education is defective in the power of this fundamental principle. A reconstruction of education must come in this country, and the best methods of character education be made universal or else we must suffer deterioration. A heart that responds to justice is the first lesson of life, and the ideal or gift of the pupil must be studied by the teacher before the pupil is put to memorizing text books, which is instruction.—Review of Reviews.

Friendship.

How were friendship possible? In mutual devotedness to the good and true—otherwise impossible; except as armed neutrality or hollow commercial league. A man, be the heavens ever praised, is sufficient for himself; yet were ten men, united in love, capable of being and of doing what 10,000 singly would fail in. Infinite is the help man can yield to man. —Carlyle.

Married Men Preferred.

Boss (to clerk applying for a job)—Married or single?

Clerk—Single.

Boss—Sorry; I only take married men as clerks.

Clerk—Why?

Boss—Because they're not in such a hurry to get home at night.—Twinkles.

A NEW Colony Resort —AND— Sportsmen's Retreat,

AT VAUGHAN, N. C.

Twenty-Six Miles South of Weldon, on the Seaboard Air Line.

A first-class retreat for sportsmen has been opened up at Vaughan, N. C., located 26 miles South of Weldon, on the Seaboard Air Line. The enterprise will be under the management of Mr. E. C. Gerhard, whose successful experience in such matters, will enable him to take care of and to please those who may patronize him.

The hunting in this territory is excellent. Quail is found in abundance. Rabbits, Deer, Squirrel and Wild Turkeys are plentiful, and delightful hunts can be arranged with citizens who have trained dogs and hounds for this purpose. On the river, six or seven miles distant, Wild Geese and Ducks are found in large numbers during the winter season.

The Seaboard Air Line will grant special rates to huntsmen, and will carry their hunting dogs free of charge.

Sportsmen Going South.

"The opening of the hunting season down South is attracting numerous parties of Northern sportsmen, several of which have gone through on the Seaboard Air Line."

"The Seaboard Air Line, recognizing the desirability and importance of attracting sportsmen to its territory, has with its usual foresight and progressiveness, established a hunting lodge at Vaughan, one of the best hunting sections in North Carolina. The lodge promises to be patronized liberally."—Portsmouth Star. no 24 tf

THE LUETGERT MURDER.

Second Trial of the Chicago Sausage Maker Begun—Court Room Packed With Spectators,

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, November 29.—The second trial of Adolph L Luetgert, for the murder of his wife, was called before Judge Gary to day. The big sausage manufacturer was represented by ex Judge Lawrence Harmon and Attorney Max Riese—Attorney Phalen having withdrawn from the case yesterday after a heated interview with Luetgert and the new lawyers.

The court room was packed with spectators when the court was called to order. Most of the session was taken up by Mr. Harmon in arguing that Judge Gary should not try Luetgert, on the ground that he was not qualified to sit as a criminal judge. Judge Gary overruled the motion of the defence, intimating, however, that he was willing that some other judge should sit in the case providing counsel for the defence could come to some agreement with the prosecution as to who should hear it. Attorneys Harmon and Riese held a consultation this afternoon with State's Attorney Deneen with the object of deciding on some other judge to hear the case.

When court reconvened at 2 p. m., the attorneys for the defence announced that they had been unable to reach an agreement as to a judge to hear the case in their consultation with State's Attorney Deneen. Attorney Harmon, however, entered exceptions to Judge Gary's overruling of his motion. Attorney Harmon then made a motion for a continuance of four weeks, stating that both he and Attorney Riese were not prepared to go on and wished time to read the records of the former trial. This was overruled after some discussion. Examination of talesmen was then commenced.

It was late in the afternoon when the task of securing a jury was entered upon, but by the time court adjourned sixteen veniremen had been examined and two jurors were accepted by the State, although the defence has still the privilege of rejecting them.

GALE ON THE ENGLISH COAST

Many Lives Lost and Property Destroyed—Numerous Vessels on Shore and Many Foundered.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LONDON, November 29—The gale which swept the English coast yesterday, doing much damage at Holyhead and other places raged all night long and had not abated early this morning when it amounted almost to a cyclone in many places and was accompanied by snow and hail.

A long list of fatalities, wrecks and damage to property, has already been received. All the coast towns have suffered and a score of bodies have been washed ashore. Falling walls and flying debris have added to the loss of life. Vessels are reported on shore on every part of the coast and many ships are known to have foundered, with the probable loss of all hands. There is much wreckage about the Goodwin Sands.

At Lowestoft, Yarmouth and elsewhere, the sea has flooded the quays and neighborhoods, washing away the esplanades, and doing other serious damage.

The sea wall at Scarborough has been washed away and the passenger and mail service across the channel have been mostly suspended.

AUSTRIAN REICHSRATH

A New Cabinet to be Formed—Rioting in Prague.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

VIENNA, November 29—It is stated here that as soon as the new cabinet is formed Baron von Gautsch von Frankenthurn the former Minister of Public Instruction and Ecclesiastical Affairs who has been entrusted with the task of forming a new ministry to succeed that of Count Casimir Badeni, who resigned yesterday, will enter into negotiations with the leaders of the Germans and Czechs with the view of bringing about a modification of the ordinances making the Czech language co-ordinate with the German. It is these ordinances that caused the riotous scenes in the lower house of the Reichsrath, which in turn produced among the populace a ferment bordering on revolution, in consequence of which the Badeni ministry resigned.

PRAGUE November 29—There have been fresh disturbances and serious conflicts with the police here to-day. The windows of the new German theatre and the German club were smashed. Ultimately the disorders became so serious that the military was ordered out to disperse the rioters.

KLONDIKE GOLD-SEEKERS.

Relief Ships Unable to Get Up the River—Famine Confronts the Miners.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 29.—The Call has received via the steamer City of Seattle a letter from its correspondent, Sam Wall, who succeeded in reaching Dawson City on September 25th, after a perilous trip in a small boat from Fort Yukon. He was the first to give the news to the people of Dawson City of the failure of the relief ships to get up the river. The gold-seekers, he says, are confronted with famine and there will undoubtedly be intense suffering during the winter months. The Dominion police have announced their intention of seizing all superfluous stores, and especially those belonging to gamblers and the disreputable element, and dividing them pro rata among the famishing citizens. Everything possible will be done to alleviate the distress.

THORN ON THE STAND.

CONTINUATION OF THE GULDENSUPPE MURDER TRIAL.

The Prisoner Tells His Story to the Jury, Accusing Mrs. Nack of Committing the Murder—Argument of Counsel to Follow—Case to Be Given to the Jury To-day.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 29.—The trial of Martin Thorn for the murder of Guldensuppe was closed to-night, so far as the taking of evidence was concerned. To-morrow morning the lawyers for the defendant and the people will sum up, and it is expected that Justice Maddox will charge the jury early in the afternoon. Mr. Howe will begin his final appeal in Thorn's behalf at 9.30 o'clock, and he expects to conclude before noon. District Attorney Youngs will then have his say for the prosecution, and he expects to finish within two hours. It is not expected that the charge of Justice Maddox will be very lengthy. So that by 3 o'clock in the afternoon the case may be with the jury.

Opinions, both lay and legal, differ very materially as to the probable result. Many look for a conviction, but a greater number anticipate a disagreement. A few of Thorn's former employers were called by the defence to-day and they all gave the accused barber an excellent character, dating back some ten years. Thorn himself was the only other witness called for the defence. From the moment he was led to the witness chair until he left it, some hours later, the prisoner conducted himself in a cool and impressive manner. His statements in reply to general questions and his answers in the direct and cross examinations were delivered in a moderate tone of voice which could be heard distinctly by all in the court house. At times his voice would drop, so that he could not be heard a few feet away, but Mr. Howe reminded the witness at these times that he should speak louder and these admonitions always had the desired effect. Thorn in his story of the murder, deliberately accused Mrs. Nack of having shot Guldensuppe.

The prosecution did not put Mrs. Nack on the stand, and the Court ruled against Mr. Howe's attempt to introduce the testimony given by Mrs. Nack at the mis trial. Thorn's testimony was as follows:

Beginning with the statement that he came to America seventeen years ago and that his real name was Torceswisky, the prisoner briefly related the facts of his life up to the time he met Mrs. Nack, 18 months ago. Guldensuppe was boarding with Mrs. Nack at that time.

"I rented a furnished room from her at two dollars a week," said Thorn. "Later I understood Guldensuppe was her husband. She first made love to me and I returned her love. I was very fond of her and loved her up to the moment she took the witness stand on my first trial."

The prisoner then told how he supplanted the bath-rubber in Mrs. Nack's affections and described the row he had with Guldensuppe in consequence last February. During this row Guldensuppe caught hold of him, and Thorn held a revolver which went off accidentally. Then Guldensuppe took the pistol from him and gave him a beating. The prisoner left the house and went to a hospital. Mrs. Nack met him afterwards very often, and they went to theatres and other places of amusement. She said she was sorry that Guldensuppe had hurt him, but that he must not heed that. Thorn, at the suggestion of his counsel, then told in his own way what Mrs. Nack had said to him after that. The Court directed Mr. Howe not to lead the witness.

"Mrs. Nack told me," said Thorn, "that she wished to leave Guldensuppe and wished to live in some quiet place. We visited Woodside cottage and as it seemed a suitable place, we hired the cottage. I paid the $15 and got the key. On the 24th of June I gave the key to Mrs. Nack, as she said she wanted to do some cleaning at the cottage. About eleven or twelve o'clock on Friday morning, June 25th, Mrs Nack met me at the door. She said 'I have Guldensuppe up stairs.' I asked her what he was doing there. She replied 'he is dead I have shot him.' She then requested me to help her dispose of the body. I went up stairs and helped to undress the body. Then we carried it to the bath-tub. I went out and bought some plaster of paris. When I came back she began cutting up the body. She cut the head off with a knife. When she reached the back of the neck she cut through that portion with a small saw. Then she cut through the middle of the body. I asked her why she cut so, and she replied, 'I know enough not to cut through the bowels.' Next she cut off the legs, after which she went out for awhile, as it was very warm in there. On her return we encased the head in the plaster of paris. We brought away the dead man's clothes in a bundle and I carried the head in another bundle. The saw, knife and revolver were in the bundle with the clothes. We took the car to the Ninety-second street ferry, over which we crossed to New York. I threw the head overboard while the boat was crossing the river. Then we went to Mrs. Nack's house, on Ninth avenue, where she burned the clothes in the cooking stove."

The witness then told of the surrey ride on the following day, Saturday, June 26th, and the disposition of the other portions of the remains, which were wrapped up in oil cloth, cheese cloth and paper, which Mrs. Nack had purchased prior to her visit to the cottage on June 25th, the day of the killing.

Thorn told of his meetings with the woman after this, and how Mrs. Nack had made preparations to go to Europe. Mrs. Nack met him on Tuesday night, June 30th, and the following day he learned from the papers that she had been arrested.

He explained the conversation with Gotha. He said that he had told Gotha that Mrs. Nack killed Guldensuppe, and also told the barber how the body was cut up and disposed of. He told Gotha of his intention to give himself up to the police, but Gotha asked him to wait. He gave Gotha some pawn tickets and made an appointment to meet him the following night. Thorn kept the appointment and was arrested. During his conversation with Captain O'Brien, Thorn said he told the detectives some truths and some falsehoods.

Surrogate Weller conducted the cross-examination.

Thorn said that Mrs. Nack gave him the gold watch and chain the day after the killing. It had belonged to Guldensuppe.

Thorn again acknowledged that he had lied to Captain O'Brien when he said he was playing pinochle at Three Hundred and Fourteenth street and Eleventh avenue on the day of the killing. He said that for the purpose of proving an alibi. He said it as much to save the woman as himself.

Mr. Weller asked Thorn about the letter and vest which were taken from him by Sheriff Doht in the Queens county jail. Thorn had tried to destroy the letter, but the officers rescued it.

Thorn identified the letter, and the Court's interpreter translated it after Mr. Howe was overruled in objecting to its being admitted. In it he asked Mrs. Nack to testify as he told her, and he would send her some more word before the trial.

"Then you were assisting in framing the defence?" asked Mr. Weller. "Yes, certainly," was Thorn's reply.

"And you were doing all you could to cover up the crime?" "Yes, I did all I could," said Thorn.

Thorn said the reason he told Gotha that Mrs. Nack committed the murder was because he thought he could trust him as a friend.

This finished the cross-examination.

Mr. Howe began his re-direct examination by showing Thorn a telegram purporting to be sent by Guldensuppe to Mrs. Nack on June 28th. It was written in German, and translated it read: "Please go where I have worked and tell them I will not return, as I am going travelling. A letter will follow. Signed, William Guldensuppe."

Thorn said he wrote it at the request of Mrs. Nack.

At this time Mr. Weller interrupted Mr. Howe by going back to the cross-examination, as the interpreter had come into the Court with type-written copies of translations of two letters which Mrs. Nack wrote to Thorn and one written to her by Thorn while in the Queens county prison. These have been printed before.

Mrs. Nack suggested that they get something to end their lives with. Thorn in his letter said he had a prescription which, if it could be filled, would end his life. He got the prescription from a man named Clark, who was a fellow-prisoner in the Tombs. He did not wish her to die; he wanted to see her free.

"You were willing to die yourself and save the woman?" asked Mr. Weller. "Yes, sir," said the prisoner. "I loved her and was willing to die for her."

The prosecution seemed taken by surprise by Thorn's statement. In this letter, which never reached Mrs. Nack, as it was captured by the officers, Thorn said: "If there is no other way out of it, I will see to it that I shall only suffer and you will go free."

GEN. BLANCO'S PLANS

For Immediate Execution of the Reform Schemes of the Spanish Government in Cuba.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, November 29.—Senor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish Minister, had an interview with Assistant Secretary Day to-day. It is the plan of Captain General Blanco to take steps for the immediate execution of the reform schemes of the Government at Madrid, and to do this legally, a provincial arrangement will be made. The captain general will appoint directly a full acting cabinet, composed of a secretary of the interior and justice, who will be the premier, a secretary of finance, a secretary of public instruction, a secretary of public works, and finally a secretary of agriculture, industry and commerce. With this cabinet the captain-general will have at hand the means for a fully equipped executive government, which will last only until the elections shall have resulted in the choice of a new government. These selections are only delayed, it is said, by reason of the lack of accurate census population of Cuba, which is essential in order to proportion the representation in the legislature.

SOUTHERN BANKERS

Call for a Convention to Be Held in Atlanta to Consider Currency Reform.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ATLANTA, GA., November 29—At a meeting of the Atlanta Clearing House Association to day a resolution was unanimously adopted calling a meeting of the bankers throughout the South to assemble in Atlanta, on December 15th, to consider the question of currency reform. Every bank in Atlanta was represented, and the meeting unanimously adopted resolutions which are in substance as follows:

That the time has arrived for the South to demand of Congress better banking facilities under a just and equitable Federal law. That the United States government should retire from the banking business and the whole system of national finances be readjusted on such a sound and scientic basis as will give each section of our common country a circulating medium adequate to its business and based upon its commercial assets. That the note holders and general creditors should be protected under Federal laws and that the measure of value should be so definitely and permanently settled as to make all our currency, paper and specie good in any part of the world. That there should be no discrimination between State and National banks, the former to have the same privileges of note issue as the latter, but under Federal supervision.

Invitations to the Atlanta meeting were sent out to day to every Southern bank.

GERMAN-HAYTIAN TROUBLE.

ATTENTION OF THE U. S. GOVERNMENT DIRECTED TO THE MATTER.

Statement of the Case Submitted by Haytian Authorities—Germany Will Brook No Interference by the United States.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The attention of the Department of State at length has been formally directed to the friction that has arisen between Germany and Hayti, as the result of the arrest by the officials of the latter country of a half-blood named Lueder. While the Department has been unofficially watching the matter for some time past it was not until to-day that the case came formally before it through the appearance there of Mr. Leger, the minister from Hayti to Washington. The minister came to consult Assistant Secretary Day and the attitude of Germany in the Lueder case was discussed. The intimation was given out at the State Department that our Government so far has gone only to the length of instructing Ambassador White at Berlin to watch developments and keep his Government informed. He will lodge a protest only in the event of the performance by Germany of some act that is not consistent with justice and international law; something that is not anticipated here. In other words the State Department does not feel that it has a right to interpose so long as the demands of Germany for redress are kept within the bounds of sound practice in international disputes, following in this the precedent set by the last administration when it permitted the landing of British troops at Corinto, Nicaragua, to secure indemnity for the ill-treatment of British consular officers. It does not follow from this, however, that the administration will look with unconcern upon any harsh and unjust measures that may be sought to be put in force by Germany towards the little island republic.

The department has been informed that the statement of facts that has been made in the case of Lueder is somewhat misleading in that it makes some important omissions. For instance, the foundation of the claim of Hayti that it had the right to punish the man as it did lies in an assertion that he was a citizen of Hayti. Lueder was born in Hayti of a German father and a native Haytian woman, and according to the laws of the Republic that made the child a full fledged citizen of Hayti. Again, as an explanation for the apparently severe treatment of Lueder the Haytian government is prepared to show that he had been twice arrested and convicted of the same offence, namely, resisting and assaulting an officer. The first offence was committed a little over a year ago and the Haytian law, like that in our country, in such cases provides for a much more severe penalty in the case of a second conviction. Also, as an indication that there was no discrimination practiced toward Lueder on the score that he was a German subject, it can be shown by the Haytian government that the person arrested with him at the time for the same offence, a native full-blooded Haytian, was subjected to exactly the same penalty, $500 fine and a year's imprisonment, that was meted out to Lueder. Altogether the case is regarded at the State Department as one that might properly be adjusted through the regular channels of diplomatic negotiations instead of through the strong means of demonstrations in force, particularly in view of the fact that Lueder is now at liberty and in Germany, and the acute phase of the case has been passed,

The Haytian Minister states that the republic is preparing for any eventuality, considering that its honor is involved in the present trouble and that it cannot yield to demonstrations of force by a powerful nation. The Minister says that Hayti's forts are unfortified and that the country has no navy, but has an army of fair proportions. Naturally, it could not expect to contend against one of the most powerful nations on the globe; but, with the honor of the republic at stake, he declares it would resist to the last and would prefer to be crushed rather than to yield to what it regards an injustice. The Haytian authorities consider that the Monroe doctrine applies to the present case, and for that reason they expect that the people of the United States will not approve the crushing of Hayti by a powerful European Government, or that the authorities here will not remain inactive if the Monroe doctrine becomes involved.

BERLIN November 29—The Berliner Tageblatt says it is reliably informed that the German Government wants only monetary reparation from Hayti for the recent arrest and imprisonment of Herr Emile Lueder by the Haytian tribunals, but that it will not brook any interference in the matter on the part of the United States.

PEKIN November 29—Inquiries made here in Chinese official circles confirm the statements contained in dispatches from Shanghai, giving the substance of the demands made by the German minister to China, as a result of the murder recently of German missionaries and the destruction of German mission property. Germany, through her minister, asks for the discovery and execution of the murderers of the missionaries; the punishment of the implicated officials, including the Governor of Shan-Tung province, in which part of China the mission was situated; the reconstruction of the missionary buildings, the payment of an indemnity of 600 000 taels to the relatives of the victims; the payment of a heavy indemnity to cover the expenses of the German naval expedition and the maintenance of the German force at Kiao-Chou bay, the railroad monopoly of the Shan-Tung province and the occupation of Kiao-Chou bay as a German coaling station.

China will refuse the demands of Germany, but will express a willingness to make ample reparation for the murder of the missionaries and for the damage done to the mission property.

Russia, it is understood, is not yet helping China, but the latter country has decided not to provoke hostilities, and to trust to diplomacy for settlement of the difficulties which have arisen in connection with the mission outrages.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

Dull Features in all Grades—Weakness in Cotton Lines.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, November 29—The dry goods market opened with dull features in all grades and a tendency towards weakness displayed in all cotton lines, as was the case during the whole of last week. It is reported that several large houses have announced a reduction in their forces of salesmen and agents, and that a number of manufacturers in cotton goods are contemplating decided curtailment unless there is a change for the better within the near future. This is hardly to be expected under present conditions and until such time as the situation changes, there is not likely to be any change in cotton goods at least.
